

Sample LOR for Master's Program

Letter Of Recommendation

I am writing to recommend Mr. Sahil Malhotra, who recently applied for (mention program name) at your esteemed university. I was his professor for the subject of Software Engineering and in my interactions with him over time, found him to be a disciplined student, who is a top performer in academics as well as extra-curricular activities.

He has always been a brilliant student academically and I would place him among the top 10 percent of all the students from the (year) batch. His interest in knowing fundamentals of the subject along with practical implications is exceptional and is also inclined towards blending creativity with learning as he often attempts to develop his own solutions. As a student he aims for holistic development, actively participates in co-curricular activities and has special interest in technical events. He is part of the team selected for the national finale of Smart India Hackathon and even in the preliminary stage of the competition was appreciated for developing an Augmented reality (AR) mobile application that provided seamless Indoor-outdoor navigation in real-time. As the member of CEG Tech Forum, he was also involved in designing and coding of the festival website and built a crowd-sourced event management app.

I have also assessed his internship performance at ABC Company and closely monitored his performance in a seminar on art of debugging. During the seminar, sharing his views about utilizing GDB to make debugging more effective, he impressed me with his articulate representation style and coherent explanation of the content. What really accentuated his presentation was his confident interaction with the audience and for his satisfactory responses garnered praises from everyone including me. Furthermore, he has the ability to acquire and consolidate vast knowledge and astonishes with the practical implementation of theoretical concepts. To sum up I would say, the finer insights he documented basis his observations as an intern were outstanding and I feel he was successful in optimally leverage his stint at a world renowned multi-national firm and managed to gain an exposure that would serve him in the long term.

I think a Masters program from a prestigious University is exactly what Sahil needs to live up to his potential. This unique coursework with detailed curriculum incorporating best practices followed globally in modern time blends perfectly with the capabilities he has nurtured and will further add another dimension to his professional career. Hence, I strongly support his choice.
